Dayne Law is a social worker, queer transgender man, Coast Guard veteran, TRR volunteer, and lifelong water sports enthusiast. He has worked with adults and youth who are trauma and sexual assault survivors, homeless, have physical and/or cognitive disabilities, women, LGBTQ+, and BIPOC (Black, Indigenous, and other People Of Color) in his clinical work and has volunteered with Team River Runner in various capacities as an OJT participant, volunteer, instructor, and Boise Chapter Flat Water Programs Manager.

All of Dayne’s work as a clinician and as a TRR volunteer has led him to understand that in order to serve clients and veterans well, we must be able to meet an individual’s psychosocial needs. Dayne believes that inclusion and belonging are critical to an individual’s ability to thrive in their community. Further, this ability to thrive is essential to ensure that TRR’s mission for health and healing through paddle sports can occur for all participants.

Lately Dayne has been on a self-imposed personal journey to examine his own implicit biases as well as areas of privilege and is on a quest for social justice in the communities that he is a part of. He is very excited for this new chapter and opportunity to be part of the change in a more diverse, equitable, and inclusive culture at TRR.
